DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on April 2, 2007 has been entered.
2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. Claims 9 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Meschi (5,720,223) in view of Faltin (3,889,939).

Meschi discloses a method of cross-cutting a web (1) having a repeated sequence of at least two printed pages with different heights (1a, 1b, 1c, 1d) substantially as claimed, including: printing (printing heads 2, 3) a web (1) with the repeated sequence of at least two printed pages with different heights; moving the printed web (1) in a running direction so that the printed web is supplied at an approximately constant web speed to a cross-cutting device (12) comprising a cutting cylinder (13) having at least one cutting knife (16) and being driven by a cutting cylinder motor (15) to rotate about an axis parallel to a cross-cutting line, the cutting cylinder motor being controlled by a computer and storage unit (24); cutting the printed web transversely to said running direction successively to form different sheets corresponding to at least two printed pages with different heights (1a, 1b, 1c, 1d).

Meschi fails to expressly disclose the printing mechanism is a printing press having a plate cylinder, or that the sequence of pages is printed for each rotation of the plate cylinder. However, Faltin discloses a method of cross-cutting a web (18) comprising a web-fed rotary printing press (10) having a plate cylinder (30, 32) driven by a plate cylinder motor, wherein the repeated sequence of pages is printed for each rotation of the plate cylinder. This arrangement provides smooth operation of the device by synchronizing the movement of the printing press and the cross-cutting device. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to print a sequence of pages for each rotation of the plate cylinder in order to provide smooth operation of the device through synchronization of the printing press and the cross-cutting device.

To the extent it can be argued that Meschi does not disclose a repeated sequence of pages, the Meschi device is clearly capable of printing any sequence of pages, including the one disclosed by Applicant, based on the desires of the user. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to print the web of the Meschi method with a repeated sequence of at least two printed pages with different heights in order to create a sequence of pages desired by the user.

4. Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Meschi (5,720,223) in view of Faltin (3,889,939) as applied to claim 11 above, and further in view of Jumel et al (4,620,466).

The modified Meschi method fails to teach an unwind device. However Jumel et al disclose an unwind device (42) used in a cutting machine. The unwind device saves space in comparison to a rotary press. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide an unwind device, as disclosed by Jumel et al, with the modified Meschi method for the purpose of saving floor space.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
